You must also defend yourself against enemy crews, as well as exercise your authority over them by acquiring and earning wealth through ownership of various businesses. While you're starting out in California, want to move on to bigger and better things pulls in your heart. Welcome to california's bloody roads. Bloody California Roads is your regular RTS game with a twist. You are thrown into the middle of a gang fight between your fellow bikers and enemies around the area. So you have to win the fight, and earn your right to stand inside the gangs. When you go, you have to learn to balance everything at an equal pace without upsetting the balance, otherwise you risk letting yourself be exposed to problems. So we'll go through a few tips and tricks to make sure you're the best biker boss that anyone has ever seen. Update slowly To begin with, lets you talk about how to keep your units strong and healthy. Throughout the game, you will have chances to constantly update different areas. For example, you can upgrade your cash reserves, your arsenal, and your defenses to just mention a few. A lot of people will try to just level one area all the way through, but it's not the smartest thing to do. Here are some tips to help you. First, make sure you're constantly updating with steam speed. While it may be tempting to simply upgrade your arsenal first, its actually best to first upgrade your money makers first. To begin with, everything requires money. From hiring defenders and intruders, to upgrading your buildings, money is the most valuable asset. So equally updating your money makers is the most important task. These areas of making money are known as regular shops or businesses such as poker lounges and bars. You can find as a rule, as a rule, in the upper right corner of your personal base as well as in other states after you take them over. We'll cover them later. For starters, make sure each one is updated equally as the strength of the business grows in anticipation rather than straight ahead. This means that with each level, production growth is actually greater than in the past. Therefore, updating each equally gives the largest increase in payouts at the level, while updating only one will become extremely expensive. Next, make sure to update the attack of your nomads. Nomads is your attacking force, and are used when attacking enemies. Thus, making sure that their attack-to-denomination power is the best course of action. A lot of people would like to upgrade the defense as well, but the defense in this is much worse, since you'll just be able to shoot them faster with increased damage. The next thing you should look at updates is the health bars of your people as they are also important. Finally, upgrading storage units is essential. These storage units come in names such as garage and money depot. This is housing for your resources that you collect and make sure to keep on some of your resources in case you get attacked. The reason you want to update these latest is because of the understanding that resources will always come back. Even if you go over the usual amount, its fine. Thus, they can be upgraded last, as overcrowding will occur anyway. Battles When it comes to battles, there are a few things to remember. To begin with, you will always have a limited number of icons. So tracking how much you have at any given time will help you determine if you can win the next fight. You'll always show you how many people or fighters they have. Next, talk about how to deal. When you get to the battle screen, you'll have five different areas that you can place your fighters on. Note that each has a certain percentage over them. These percentages tell you how big a bonus you will get if starting from now on. The higher the percentage, the better the increase in your statistics. So make sure you constantly prefer it, whether it's on defense, or offense. How to attack areas you start in California, but there is an opportunity to move from district to district. Therefore, do not attack randomly. Focus on one state at a time. That's because you get a bonus if you take over all the areas in one state. If you do, you get the opportunity to increase your income by upgrading buildings and businesses in that state. But, you can only get that if you completely destroy all the territories and claim them as your own. One way to ensure this is to attack larger populated areas in the first place. These tend to have higher enemies, meaning you can run through them first, lose a few people, and still Enough resources to kill weaker enemies later. It also allows you to clear them all at once, instead of constantly waiting for your nomads and fighters to be recruited after getting killed. These are just a few tips and tricks for California's Bloody Roads. Whether you use them or not, it's up to you how you can play as you wish. Good luck, and happy fights! Fight!
